Ethical leadership beyond profit

Organisations as catalysts for ethical societies

Our conference theme - Ethical Leadership Beyond Profit - Organisations as Catalysts for Ethical Societies – suggests that organisational leaders may have an increasing responsibility (and opportunity) to play a positive formative role in society. Throughout history, our greatest leaders have been those who made an indelible positive impact on the world, often contributing to the creation of more just societies.

In an era marked by increasing insecurity and global uncertainty, the future direction of our societies is increasingly unclear. Global political tensions, climate change, artificial intelligence, and corruption add to this uncertainty, with governments unable to solve these issues alone.

At this ethics conference, we will invite leaders to reflect on their personal journeys and consider the contributions they, and others, can make at leadership level. We will explore how organisational leaders can take on this growing responsibility, driven not only by benevolence but by the necessity of ensuring the sustainability of both our organisations and our society.

The conference consists of two parts: an Ethical Leadership Symposium followed by a Practical Ethics Workshop. The event is presented in a hybrid format, offering the option to attend either in person or virtually.
