What Corruption Inquiries Really Reveal About Organisational Ethics

Corruption inquiries capture public attention with powerful testimony and major disclosures. But what do they truly reveal about organisational culture, governance, and leadership accountability?

In this free webinar, Jeff Wicks and Sikonathi Mantshantsha, investigative journalists at News24, will share insights from their work uncovering corruption and systemic failure. Dr Lincoln Cave, Senior Ethics Subject Matter Expert at The Ethics Institute, will lead the conversation, unpacking the ethical and governance implications for organisations.

We will explore:

- How individual misconduct becomes systemic ethical failure
- How governance blind spots weaken accountability
- What inquiries reveal about decision-making in state institutions
