Young people shaping ethical communities

WEBINAR

Corruption affects everyone, but young people often experience its impact first-hand through fewer opportunities, declining trust in institutions and the challenges it creates for communities

This webinar, hosted by TEI Youth, explores how young people, alongside citizens of every generation, can strengthen accountability and help build more ethical communities.

Drawing on practical experiences, the discussion will consider the challenges young people face, what it means to act with integrity, and how individual choices can contribute to lasting change.

Young people are not only the leaders of tomorrow. They are already shaping the future through the choices they make, the standards they set and the courage they show when they speak up.

This session is relevant to students, graduates, young professionals, youth leaders and everyone committed to fighting corruption.
